DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over JP 11043731 (PTO-1449).

JP 11043731 discloses composition and grain size in abstract and tensile strength in Table 5, sample no. 3 and 16; Table 6, sample no. 36, 37, and 41 except for claimed grain aspect ratio and stress relaxation ratio. But, instant claimed grain aspect ratio includes equiaxed grains – when “a” is equal to “b” which reads on grain of said reference. The fact that the grain size of cited reference measures grain size in diameter which suggest it is about equiaxed grain structure (JP 11043731, section MEANS [0005]). With respect to the stress relaxation ratio that the instant material composition, processing steps, grain size, and tensile strength are overlapped by the cited reference; consequently, the stress relaxation ratio as recited in the instant claims would have inherently possessed by the teachings of the cited reference. Therefore, the burden is on the applicant to prove that the product of the prior art does not necessarily or inherently possess characteristics attributed to the claimed product.

In re Best, 195 USPQ, 430 and MPEP § 2112.01.

“Where the claimed and prior art products are identical or substantially identical in structure or composition, or are produced by identical or substantially identical processes, a prima facie case of either anticipation or obviousness has been established, In re Best, 195 USPQ 430, 433 (CCPA 1977). ‘When the PTO shows a sound basis for believing that the products of the applicant and the prior art are the same, the applicant has the burden of showing that they are not.’ In re Spada, 15 USPQ2d 1655, 1658 (Fed. Cir. 1990). Therefore, the prima facie case can be rebutted by evidence showing that the prior art products do not necessarily possess the characteristics of the claimed product. In re Best, 195 USPQ 430, 433 (CCPA 1977).”

Claims 1-24, 35, and 47 are further rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 11043731 as applied to claims above, and further in view of EP 0440548 (PTO-1449).

JP 11043731 discloses the features substantially as claimed as set forth in the rejection above except for the stress relaxation ratio. However, EP 0440548 in page 5 and page 7, Table 2 discloses stress relaxation ratio from 11-12% (samples 1-8) at temperature 150 °C for 500 hours is known in the same field of endeavor or the analogous metallurgical art. Because the instant specification does not provide conditions such as time and temperature the stress relaxation ratio is recorded; thus, the instant claimed stress relaxation ratio is considered conventional and it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

Conclusion

Applicant is reminded that when amendment and/or revision is required, applicant should therefore specifically point out the support for any amendments made to the disclosure. See 37 C.F.R. § 1.121 and 37 C.F.R. Part §41.37 (c)(1)(v).
